FEFU & APEC Goals

In 2013, FEFU will create the APEC University Network - a set of agreements between several universities on the unification of certain academic programs in different areas of study.

The main purpose of the APEC University Network is to promote maximum mobility for students and academics.

It will:

- be open for participation of all universities that meet the unified set criteria;
- have transparent rules, clearly understood by the whole academic community;
- be a decentralized institution with a representative international governing body, and programs, centers and offices distributed among different locations.

APEC University Network step by step
